Child Sexual Abuse Prevention in Schools Series

Claims of sexual abuse and molestation against students have become the most expensive category of cases for many school insurers, sometimes exhausting limits, especially in multi-victim cases.

VRSA is partnering with Vector Solutions/Safe Schools to provide access to their Child Sexual Abuse Prevention in Schools series.

Authored by child sexual abuse prevention expert Diane Cranley, the 22 microlearning courses are designed to prepare K-12 school staff to recognize and interrupt attempts at child sexual abuse before they happen.

Each short course effectively engages the learner so they retain the knowledge. Courses are broken down by grade levels to help identify the unique characteristics of sexual grooming at different age ranges at the elementary, middle, and high school levels.

The program is designed to help teachers and school staff and administrators prevent sexual abuse before it happens by:

- Educating the school community on signs of abuse in children;
- Educating the school community on risky behaviors in child molesters that are apparent before abuse happens;
- Raising awareness of the risk of sexual abuse in and through schools; and
- Keeping the subject top of mind and engaging the school community.

Get Started: The implementation process is simple.

E-mail: clientsupport@vectorsolutions.com stating that your school division is a VRSA member. Provide your main training coordinator name and contact information and one of the Vector Solutions Client Success Managers will reach back out to you to begin the implementation process.
